

AS THOU HAST DONE

("Reprinted from the February 13, 1970 issue of Muhammad Speaks.")

THE LAW of nature justifies that a man reap that which he sow because that was his own seed that he sowed and not somebody else's seed. But if he take the seed and sow it in another man's field, and since he had no right to sow in another man's field, then someone may sow their seed in his field. They should be justified in so doing because the stranger would be giving the sower that which he had first given to others. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

WHEN a man does evil, he never wishes for someone to do the same evil to him. It is the nature of us to desire good for self. Since it is our nature to desire that good be done to us then we should do good to others.

WHITE AMERICA has mistreated her Black slave for four centuries and crushed him under her feet. She has not tired of keeping him in a suffering condition. The Black slave is oppressed day and night by a white master whom the Black slave helped to exalt.

WHITE AMERICA

destroyed the home of her poor Black slave completely and still, in this late day, she rapes her Black once - slave. This is awful. It is awful for the white master to go out and rape his Black slave.

THE BLACK woman is being raped now so that there will be no respect for her among the nations of earth. The Black woman has been the glorious flower of the nations of earth. But now she has begun to be hated and despised and the nations that will play the harlot with her are disrespected by other nations. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

WHITE AMERICA has trailed her Black slave all around the earth and has put hatred and disrespect for her Black slave in the hearts of other nations. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

YOU can go to Asia today and see how the Asiatics look upon white America as an unwanted guest. White America is fast becoming disregarded, disrespected and hated by Black Africans whose people and country she has robbed. The character of Black

Africans has been shaped by white America and England. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

WHITE AMERICA has rejoiced and gloated over the evil she has done to others. White America goes to war with weak nations. She destroys their towns and cities and levels them to the ground. She comes back home to America and looks over a great country of three thousand by two thousand (3,000 x 2,000) square miles filled with towns and cities, from coast to coast, from gulf to border, although she has just finished destroying the towns and cities of other people who had not ventured to come within her borders to destroy even one of her houses. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

WHITE AMERICA hates for respect and honor to come to her Black slave so much so, that if she takes her Black slave to war with her against her enemy, white America even makes her enemy to hate her Black slave whom she has used to help her to defend the lives of her people and the independence of her country.

WHITE AMERICA teaches strangers and enemy nations, "Do not take my Negro as an equal member of society along with us." When she uses the Black slave to fight people of the Black slave's kind, white America teaches the enemy whom the Black slave is fighting in order to defend America, "Do not get too friendly with the Black slave, they are full of diseases like gonorrhea and syphilis and other social diseases."

WHO DID the Black slave get these diseases from? The Black slave got these diseases from his white master. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

THE WHITE slave master beats and disgraces the Black woman on the streets of America. He drags her up and down the streets and puts his dogs on her. "AS THOU HAST DONE so shall it be done unto thee..."

WHITE AMERICA goes into his laboratories, with the high learned white scientists of war and they build for him the worst and
