Mayor demands Blacks share in city business

By Harold 4X

ATLANTA, Ga. — Atlanta's first - term Black Mayor, Maynard Jackson has taken a firm stand on the participation of Black businesses in the city's government contracts.

Despite verbal attacks and behind - the - scenes power plays directed against Mayor Jackson's administration, the 37 year - old Mayor insists that Black - owned construction companies receive a fair share of city contracts.

THE NEWS MEDIA, white businessmen and politicians are angry and upset at the delay of a major airport expansion project because the Mayor refuses to allow it to proceed without Blacks sharing in its construction. The issue involves a $400 million contract.

Mayor Jackson's opponents have tried every conceivable way to weaken his powers or administration, but their actions have thus far only strengthened it.

The Mayor opened the door for small businessmen to bid for city jobs when his administration took office. However, the small firms still found themselves at a disadvantage because of the amount and size of the contracts.

MAYOR JACKSON introduced a concept he called "Minority Joint Venture." The idea was to allow Black firms to join white firms in fulfillment of governmental contracts.

"It's an idea whose time has come. It is the next logical step in equal employment opportunity here," the Mayor said.

Mayor Jackson noted a discrepancy in the criticism of his plan saying "the irony of the resistance to the idea is that the resistance is often by people who criticize Blacks for not being resourceful. Now here's a chance for Blacks not to get a giveaway."

Earlier this year the mayor suggested that architectural and engineering contract holders for the airport recruit Black - owned firms to do one - fourth of the job. At first there was some evasion and reluctance however, the mayor insisted.

Devalued Money added worry to Zionist settlers

TEL AVIV — The bogus state of occupied Palestine (Israel) already burden with enormous taxes and a devalued currency — once more has been forced to devalue its currency by 10 per cent in an effort to cut public spending and curb soaring deficits, according to a recent report.

The doubled - barreled wallop of tax increases and currency devaluation by the government of occupied Palestine (Israel) has spurred serious division in the settler states ruling congress, according to the report.

This is the fourth devaluation of the Israeli pound in less than a year.

"The Israeli cabinet met in special session to set the currency at seven per cent to the United States dollar — instead of 6.36 per cent as it had been earlier this year. The Cabinet also raised the sales tax on a range of industrial products by more than eight per cent.

Gasoline for example will cost 20 per cent more, cigarettes 18 per cent, and water, a life - giving material to all human communities, now costs 25 per cent more in Israel, the report said.

Despite heavy financial assistance from the S. and massive bond drives by American Jews in support of occupied Palestine (Israel), the colony still for the most part finds itself in a severe economic crisis.

Several economist commenting on Israel's dire economic situation, noted that the new measures to curb the economic crisis were not enough.

The economist argued, according to the report, that the 10 per cent devaluation of the Israeli pound would at best strengthen the U.S. dollar on the world money market.
