

CHILDREN MUST BE PREPARED

THE MOTHERS AND FATHERS of the so-called American Negro children must see that their children are properly educated. The education of the child should begin with stories of actual events (not fairy-tales). It should be told something about his own people history and black national heroes in stories. The first part of education is, therefore, oral education, education by talk and conversation. Also the child should be asked to do small household tasks, such as to keeping and arranging its clothes, cleaning its room and putting its books in order. This is very necessary for the proper education of the child. Early in its life, the child should be taught dignity of labor and the habit of doing its own work. This will develop self-reliance in the child. It is the duty of every so-called

Negro to equip their sons and daughters with this practical kind of education, so that they may be able to stand on their own legs and build their own future and for their people. In the picture above, Helema Muhammad looks out on the great future destined for her people.

THE MOTHERS AND FATHERS of the so-called American Negro children must see that their children are properly educated. The education of the child should begin with stories of actual events (not fairy-tales). It should be told something about his own people

history and black national heroes in stories. The first part of education is, therefore, oral education, education by talk and conversation. Also the child should be asked to do small household tasks, such as to keeping and arranging its clothes, cleaning its room and

putting its books in order. This is very necessary for the proper education of the child. Early in its life, the child should be taught dignity of labor and the habit of doing its own work. This will develop self-reliance in the child. It is the duty of every so-called

Negro to equip their sons and daughters with this practical kind of education, so that they may be able to stand on their own legs and build their own future and for their people. In the picture above, Helema Muhammad looks out on the great future destined for her people.