Detroit's UNIVERSITY of ISLAM

'Children need more than three R's—Muhammad

EDUCATION occupies a very high and important place in the religion of the Muslim followers of Mr. Elijah Muhammad. And anyone who has ever visited the University of Islam at Detroit, or in Chicago, readily understands that Mr. Muhammad spares no expense in providing the best of physical plant and working facilities for the education of Muslim children.

Big, roomy, modern-lighted hallways and classrooms are a must in the University of Islam, where many of the future ministers of Islam receive their early training. Libraries are well-stocked with books, periodicals and other educational tools from all parts of the world.

Detroit's University of Islam is typical of the high standards of education that are insisted upon by Elijah Muhammad. The Muslim leader says, "The education and training of our children must not be limited to the 'Three R's' (reading, riting and 'rithmetic) only. It should instead include the history of the black nation, the knowledge of civilizations of man and the universe, and all sciences. It is necessary that the young people of our Nation (Islam) learn all they can. Learning is a great virtue and I would like to see all the children of my followers become possessors of it. It will make us an even greater people tomorrow."
