

For And About You

By Harriett Muhammad

DEAR HARRIETT: I had a bank for my little grandson and it contained more than $40. However, when I opened it recently, I found only $12. With the exceptions of my husband, the landlord and myself, nobody else has a key to my apartment. I think a stranger would have taken the bank as well as it contents. Please give me some ideas about the missing money. I'm so worried and unhappy about it. —MRS. C. H., Cleveland, Ohio

DEAR MRS. C. H.: Since you have only two suspects, I suggest you ask your husband if he "borrowed" some money from the bank and forgot to replace it. Ask him in a tactful manner. If he doesn't know anything about the missing money, try a similar tactful approach on your landlord.

If you don't get any positive results, you can kiss the money goodbye — and whatever you now have and accumulate in the future should be put under lock and key.

DEAR HARRIETT: I'm in love with a man, but he will accept me only as a "sister," but I'd rather be closer to him than that. Is it wrong for me to feel like this?

He's in love with another girl — very small and good looking — but she doesn't love him the way I do. But if he wants it this way, so do I. Nevertheless, I love him so much and I have felt this way about him for a year and a half. Couldn't we be together the way I would like it?—ELIZABETH, N.J.

ATTENTION, ELIZABETH, N.J.: You should know this is not a fairy-tale world where there is always a happy ending. If this man doesn't want you to be his forget everything. The only reason you continue to feel so badly and bathe yourself in self-pity is because you don't want to face up to reality.

The choice is yours—keep on being miserable and wishing everything will work out your way, or face the truth and start looking for someone who wants you, too.

DEAR HARRIETT: My husband is a BIG DRUNK. He drinks every day — as long as he can get money to buy liquor. He is borrowing money constantly to spend on drinks. I want to know how long I have to put up with him. I'm so sick and tired of his being drunk, I am ready to scream! But I don't know what to do. Please help me.—SICK, East Liverpool, Ohio.

DEAR MRS SICK: When a man feels a need to consume liquor continuously, he has mental problems. The only way to break the habit is to find out what drives him to drink—and then find a way to make him see what it is.

I suggest you ask your operator to put you in contact with a public agency or institution for alcoholics. Talk with the officials and see what can be done to start rehabilitating your husband. It is going to be difficult and it needs your cooperation and understanding. Get, set, then go.

Recipe To Remember

Imaginative cook and seamstress, Dorothy Armstead.

New Use for Old Favorite

Finding a new use for an old kitchen favorite, Mrs. Dorothy Armstead, of Oklahoma, dress designer and seamstress, has offered our readers "Buttermilk Pie." To pep up those flagging appetites of young and old, Dorothy suggests you whip up this simple though delectable chiffon.

BUTTERMILK PIE

- 4 Egg Yolks
- 1 1/4 Cup Sugar
- 1 Stick Butter
- 2 Tbsps. Flour
- 1 Tsp. Baking Pwd.
- 1/2 Cup Crushed Pineapple
- 1 1/2 Tsp. Vanilla
- Pinch of Soda
- 2 Cups Milk
- 1/2 Tsp. Nutmeg

Cream butter and sugar, add flour and egg yolks. Mix well. Then add the other ingredients, mixing well. Pour in unbaked pie crust, bake in 350-degree oven about 1 hour, or until well set. Remove from the oven and top with meringue. Return to the oven and brown to your desire.
